

Grand Hotel Central

BARCELONA, SPAIN

Following a dynamic shift in management and ownership, the Grand Hotel Central, a member of Small Luxury Hotels of the World, has been rejuvenated under an independent brand, showcasing a stunning renovation.

The transformation, guided by London-based design studio Sagrada — known for their work on the London Art's Club, Maison Breguet Paris, and St Regis Venice — pays homage to the Noucentisme era and the Chicago School, both influential in the hotel's original 1920s design. The hotel now gleams with natural materials like wood, stone, and polished concrete, paired with a soothing palette of earthy tones, muted blues, and blush pinks.

Each piece of furniture is bespoke, adding a touch of unique charm to every corner. Drawing inspiration from the rich history of the building and its visionary founder, politician and patron of the arts, Francesc Cambó, the newly revitalised Grand Hotel Central is a celebration of local culture. Guests will experience it in the Barcelona-based Carner bathroom amenities, in the hotel's signature fragrance, crafted by master perfumer

Alberto Morillas, and in the staff uniforms designed by Catalan fashion star Josep Abril. Art enthusiasts will delight in the collection of works by local artists selected by curator Victoria Comballa. The hotel's heart is the historic wood-panelled library of Cambó, showcasing a selection of his personal book collection.

Situated on the iconic Via Layetana, the hotel boasts 147 elegantly designed rooms and suites, a vibrant street-level restaurant, Can Bo, and the rooftop oasis, La Terraza del Central. Here, guests can savour a cocktail with views of Barcelona's old town, while lounging on Balinese beds, taking a dip in the infinity pool, or dine as DJs set the scene for lively evenings.

The hotel's wellness area features a spa with hammam, sauna, and Natura Bissé treatments, alongside a gym offering panoramic views of the Gothic Quarter.

The Grand Hotel Central is a vibrant experience, truly capturing the essence of Barcelona and inviting guests to indulge in the city's timeless allure.
